

Family and Community

1. Family

- Family is the basic and oldest unit of society.
- Families provide love, care, cooperation, and support.
- Main types of families:
 - Joint Family – grandparents, parents, uncles, aunts, cousins live together.
 - Nuclear Family – parents and children living separately.

2. Importance of Family

- Family members are interdependent and help one another.
- Children learn:
 - values
 - traditions
 - discipline
 - responsibilities
- Family acts as the first school of life.

3. Roles and Responsibilities

- Every member has duties in the family.
- Parents care for children and guide them.
- Children help in household work as they grow.
- Grandparents often provide:
 - wisdom
 - stories
 - emotional support
- Families work through cooperation and sharing.

4. Family Values

Important values taught in families:

- Ahimsa – non-violence
- Dāna – giving
- Sevā – service
- Tyāga – sacrifice

5. Community

- A community is a group of connected people living or working together.
- Communities support one another during:
 - festivals
 - farming
 - disasters
 - social activities

6. Community Cooperation

- Communities often create rules for:
 - sharing resources
 - cleanliness
 - helping each other
- Example:
 - Bhil community in Madhya Pradesh worked together to conserve water and plant trees through the Halma tradition.
 - During the 2015 Chennai floods, people and organisations distributed food and help.

7. Urban Community Example

- Kamal Parmar in Ahmedabad taught poor children for free after work hours.
- Shows values of:
 - compassion
 - service
 - community welfare

- importance of education

8. Types of Communities

Communities can be based on:

- religion
- region
- occupation
- interests
- school clubs
- sports groups

9. Interdependence

- Families and communities depend on each other.
- Society functions smoothly when people:
 - cooperate
 - follow responsibilities
 - help others

Key Points

- Family is the foundation of society.
- Community is a larger group where people support one another.
- Cooperation, sharing, and responsibility are essential for both family and community life.